

The Crucible

This 1953 play by Arthur Miller is a dramatization of the Salem witchcraft trials that took place in the Province of Massachusetts Bay during 1692 and 1693. Today it is recognized as a revolutionary work of Theater for its allegorical relationship to testimony given before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The Lion in Winter

King Henry II plans a reunion to select his successor. He summons his wife, his mistress, Princess Alais, his three sons and the young but crafty King Philip of France. With the fate of Henry's empire at stake, everybody engages in their own brand of deception and treachery to stake their claim.

A Christmas Story

An American Christmas comedy based on the short stories and semi-fictional anecdotes of author and raconteur Jean Shepherd. It's 1940, almost Christmas, and Ralphie Parker hopes to get a Red Ryder 200-shot Carbine Action Range Model Air Rifle.

The Wizard of Oz

The music from the MGM movie. The story straight from L. Frank Baum. Dorothy and Toto meet memorable friends and foes in the wonderful Land of Oz. The brain, the heart, the courage and so much more will revive your memories of this favorite adventure.

Monroe Community Players is a proud member of the Community Theatre Association of Michigan (CTAM) and the American Association of Community Theatres (AACT). We are a 501(c)3 non-profit corporation providing the Monroe area with live theater for over 62 years. William D. Smith and his wife, H. Marie Betrus Smith, revitalized Monroe Community Players in 1948. It had disbanded during World War II. Bill's mother, Edna L. Smith, was a member at that time. There have been four generations of the Smith family in Players. H. Marie Smith, Paul W. Smith, Bernie Abbate Smith, Alison Smith Schwanke, and Lauren Smith were all in plays with William D. Smith. Mark D. Smith has also been a member of Players, along with his daughter Jessica Smith Burns, who was in several shows.
